

(Washington, D.C.) Congressman Tim Ryan announced today that he has secured federal funding for a military construction project at the Ravenna Training and Logistics Site that would create an instructional center critical to the mission of the training site. The $1.5 million secured in the Military Construction Appropriation bill will be used to renovate an existing warehouse to provide appropriate classroom space, including upgrades to heating, ventilation and air conditioning.

“This money will be used to make sure that our Army National Guard personnel get quality instruction in the best facilities we can provide,” said Congressman Ryan. “Those who serve our country must be well trained for their mission, and the renovation of this building for classroom instruction is important to making this facility a first-class training center.”

When the renovations are complete, the building will house the first instructional classrooms at the Ravenna facility.
